New Model Typewriter!

BUY IT NOW!

Yes, the crowning typewriter triumph is here!

It is just out---and comes years before experts expected it. For makers have striven a lifetime to attain this ideal machine. And Oliver has won again, as we scored when we gave the world its first visible writing.

There is truly no other typewriter on earth like this new Oliver "9." Think of touch so light that the tread of a kitten will run the keys!

CAUTION!

The new-day advances that come alone on this machine are all controlled by Oliver. Even our own previous models-famous in their day-never had the Optional Duplex Shift.

It puts the whole control of $4 letters and characters in the little fingers of the right and left hands. And it lets you write them all with only 28 keys, the least to operate of any standard typewriter made.

THUS WRITERS OF ALL OTHER MACHINES CAN IMMEDIATELY RUN THE OLIVER NUMBER "9" WITH MORE SPEED AND GREATER EASE.

AN ESCAPE AT SEA

A Yankee Prisoner Takes

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

In the autumn of 1914 when the German cruisers were destroying British commerce on the high seas Jack Marston, an American boy, was an ordinary seaman aboard the English ship Sea Gull. That wasn't the real name of the vessel, but there are reasons why it should be firtitious. Jack had been brought up on the Maine coast and was as much at home in the water as on shore and nearly as much at home in it as out of it. At any rate, he preferred to be in it.

Just why he shipped aboard a British vessel instead of an American does not appear, though American ships being few and far between it is probable that he would have been obliged to look for some time in order to get a berth on one. 'He was in Portland one day and, finding the Sea Gull there and about to make a trip to Valparaiso and return, concluded to sign for the

One morning when the Sea Gull was not a hundred miles from the port of her destination her captain espied on her port quarter a war vessel too far distant to make out to what nation she belonged. He was not long in doubt, for the ship headed for the Sea Gull, and when she came near enough the German flag was seen flying from her stern. She proved to be the Emden, one of the most remarkable of the commerce destroying cruisers of

The Sea Gull being defenseless, her captain and crew realized that her sailing days were ended. They were taken aboard the Emden, and their ship was scuttled and sunk. That Jack Marston was a United States citizen was no especial advantage to him, for, being a member of the crew of a British ship, he was subject to the same terms as the others. However, there was nothing to be done with the captives until the Emden's commander could find some way of getting rid of them, and they were all kept aboard the Emden. They were considered prisoners of war, but not placed in confinement. Indeed, there were crews of two other captured ships aboard, besides a number of passengers.

Jack had not shipped to be kept aboard a German cruiser, darting hither and thither hunting for the merchant marine of Germany's enemies, and was much disgruntled. He told the captain of the Emden that he was an American citizen and asked to be furnished the means of getting ashore. But he had no proofs of his citizenship and even if he had would probably not have been entitled to different treatment from the other captives.

Jack having nothing to do, his mind turned on the problem of regaining his liberty. He did a great deal of thinking, with no practical result. There may be regularly planned escapes, but Jack, being out on the ocean, usually hundreds of miles from shore, might plan till the crack of doom without hitting upon any way of getting ashore even if he could elude the officers and crew of the Emden. If the cruiser had put into port the matter might have been feasible. But this she dared not do, for British warships were watching the harbors. Indeed, the safest place for the Emden was far out at sea, where the area was so large that she was not likely to be found, and if sighted by an enemy too strong for her she would have plenty of room for

Such being the case. Jack soon made up his mind that he must wait for an opportunity, and an opportunity would not likely arise unless the Emden found it essential to approach the coast, either for supplies or to get rid of her prisoners, who were making great inroads into her stock of provi-

Jack one morning on awakening was surprised to see land not two miles from the ship. The Emden was steaming northward, skirting the shore. The reason for this was soon apparent Jack saw seaward a British man-ofwar, cruising along in the same direction as the Emden. It was evident that the latter was keeping within the limit of three miles from shore, which by international law is neutral waters. Jack looked at the shore longingly. He would have undertaken to swim to it. but in broad daylight it would be impossible for him to leave the ship without being seen. He resolved to wait till night. But when night came the idea of committing himself to the black, inhospitable waters to swim between two or three miles to a shore he could not see was too much for even his water pluck, and he dared not try it. He hoped for an opportunity just before dawn.

But during the midwatch a fog rolled in, and the captain of the Emden. taking advantage of it, ren out to sea. and when the next day the feg lifted she was out of sight of land. Jack ground his teeth, for he feared that he would not again get so near the shore.

That day one of the Sea Gull's crew died. The sailmaker of the Emden was engaged in making a bag in which to give the corpse a ses burish and as Jack set watching him at work an idea entered his bead. One might put him-welf in the bag in place of the corpse to be thrown overboard and thus escape. Escape where? Swimming on the bosom of an ocean unless there is a vessel near or land within reach is an undesirable change even from captivity. No; there was nothing in that idea and it was banished.

That afternoon a cloud of smoke appeared on the horizon, and soon the black hull of a war vessel loomed up. There was a commotion on board the Emden, for the vessel might be a Brit-Ish warship. The captain permitted her to come close enough to see that she flew the union jack of Great Britain and that she was a much larger craft than the Emden. Then he began to show his heels.

That night the lights on the Emden were darkened, and she changed her course several times. Quite likely the British ship also covered her lights. At any rate, she was not to be seen. The Emden's captain hoped that when daylight came again he would be rid of her. Unfortunately for the Einden the night was bright by the light of a full moon, so that she could be seen by her pursuers.

The next morning at dawn Jack Marston went on deck and at the first break of day descried the British ship somewhat nearer than the night before. The Britisher must have discovered the Emden at the same time, for a dense cloud of smoke issuing from her stacks indicated that she was putting fuel on her fires. The Emden followed suit and made every effort to escape. For a time it seemed that the Englishman was gaining; then for an hour she neither lost nor gained. Jack, who was watching her closely, made up his mind that she was slowly losing.

Now, the crew of the Sea Gull were hoping that they would be rescued, and when Jack told them that the Britisher was slowly losing ground they were much disappointed. Jack determined to take an awful risk. That was to get himself sewed up in the burial bag and thrown overboard. with the hope of being picked up by the pursuing ship.' He told his mates of his plan and asked them to help him. They looked upon his scheme as foolhardy and tried to dissuade him from it. But when they found that this was impossible they offered to do anything he suggested in their power. Jack's plan was this: The attention of the officers and crew of the Emden was confined to getting away from the pursuing ship. The Sea Gull's men might steal the body of their dead comrade and hide it. They might then sew Jack up in the burial bag and heave him overboard without permission. They might omit the shot usually tied to the ankles for sinking purposes, and Jack would not remain long under water. On rising he would endeavor to attract the attention of the Britisher.

The crew of the Sea Gull agreed to do their part in the matter. If Jack wished to commit suicide he might do so. That was his lookout not theirs. So when every one of the Emden's crew was intent on the pursuer they took the body out of the burial bag. and Jack got into it with pieces of cork tied under his shoulders, some provisions in a rubber bug, a bottle of water, a knife and a piece of white cotton cloth attached to a stick for signal purposes.

It was decided to ask the captain of the Emden for permission to bury their dead companion. He was too busy at the time to give any thought to their request and granted it with a nod of the head. Then the sailors carried Jack to the side of the ship and. standing about him uncovered, slid him overboard.

Jack did not mind being discovered in the water by the Germans, for he knew they would not think of stopping to pick him up. He was not below the surface more than twenty seconds, but when he reappeared the cruiser was going so fast that she was already quite a distance from him. The gaze of most of them was in his direction. but was fixed on the pursuing ship. One man caught sight of him, but Jack simply floated on the surface and was probably supposed to be the corpse that had been given burial. At any rate, no especial attention was paid to him. and he was being rapidly left astern.

Jack's main fear was that the Britisher, being in a burry, would fail to pick him up even if he succeeded in attracting her attention. He was directly in her line and with his white fing would likely succeed in making himself seen. She was nearly half an hour behind the Emden and losing. When a few hundred yards from him he waved his flag. He knew that he was seen, for he saw several persons pointing at him and evidently discussing bim.

But Jack was horrified to see the ship proceed on her way without stopping for him. She had gone nearly a mile beyond him when a gladdening sight met his view. There was a boat being lowered. There were men in it. and when in the water and loosened from the ship they pulled toward him.

Jack was picked up, and the ship waited for the return of her boat. Her commander was conscious of losing on the Emden and had decided to save the man in the water. When Jack was taken aboard he was plied with questions as to the German eruiser, but could only say that she was the Emden and had aboard the crews of several vessels she had sunk.

Jack was put ashere at a South American port and determined that when he committed bimself again to the deep he would go under the Amerlcan flag. After waiting some time he found a berth on a United States vessel and in due time turned up on his native shore. He says he is quite content with his experience as a sailor on the ocean in wartime and has no desire for any more of it.

The verse found in Genesis II. "And the whole earth was of one language and of one people," has given rise to much speculation as to the language spoken on the earth previous to the "confusion of tongues." According to many authorities, Hebrew was the langange spoken by Adam, while others state that Hebrew, Arabic and Chaldee are simply dialects of the original tongue. The Persians assert that there were three primitive languages. The Arabic, being the most persuasive, was used by the serpent in addressing Eve: the Persian, being the most poetic, was spoken by Adam and Eve, and the Turkish, being the most menacing, was employed by the angel when driving the guilty pair from the garden of Herodotus says that Psammetichus. king of Egypt, wishing to learn the language that would naturally be spoken by a person, caused two infants to be carefully guarded and kept from all verbal intercourse. When brought before him the first word the children uttered was bekos, the Phrygian for bread, whereupon it was at once asserted the Phrygian was the primeval or oldest tongue.-Philadelphia Press.

For the Ultra Precise.

Professor Thomas R. Louisbury said at Cambridge in a talk on English: "But precision can be carried too far. The ultra precise, even when logically right, are really wrong. "An ultra precise professor went into a hardware shop and said:

"'Show me a shears, please." "'You mean a pair of shears, don't you? said the dealer. "'No,' said the professor. 'I mean what I say. I mean a shears."

"The dealer took down a box of sbears.

"'Look here, professor, he said. "Aren't there two blades here? And don't two make a pair?

"'Well, you've got two legs. Does that make you a pair of men?' And the professor smiled at the dealer triamphantly through his spectacles.

"He was logically right, but, really, he was wrong."-Philadelphia Bulletin.

起 註 like to fly:" is brief: The question has lost novelty, yet it has never been answered-never, that is to say, in a manner wholly convincing. The reason is that the sensation is indescribable-"like nothing else on earth." has a passenger has said. If you can imagine yourself gliding over a smooth surface of ice on skates you cannot feel and which make no noise. that may convey some faint idea perhaps of the feelings you experience after leaving ground. You are supported on something, yet you are not supported. You look down, and there is nothing below you but an empty void. Yet the machine rides firmly and securely, as though you were in a motorcar on the smoothest road.

What is a Placer?

A placer is an unconsolidated deposit accumulated by mechanical processes, carrying one or more minerals in commercial quantities. All placers are secondary deposits-that is, the material of which they are composed was originally derived by erosion of bedrock. Although it is undoubtedly true that under certain conditions nuggets action is a negligible quantity in placers. Piacers may be derived solely by rock weathering without water sort ing but more commonly are the result of water transportation, sorting and deposition. Augustine Washington, the father of George Washington, was engaged in 1732 in making pig from at Accokeek furnace, in Stafford county, Va., about fifteen miles from Fredericksburg when his famous son was born. This furnace had been built by the Princip io company, composed of English capitalists, as early as 1726 on land owned by Augustine Washington, aggregating about 1.690 acres and containing iron ore, Mr. Washington becoming the owner of one-sixth of the furnace property in consideration of the transfer of his land to the company.

A Chinese Gutenborg.

There is preity good evidence of a Chinese Gutenberg, one Pi Ching, who in 1047 carred cubes of percelain paste with Chinese characters, afterward baked them and "set" the percelain type by belp of parallel wires on a plate of iron in a cement bed. MERICA'S pre-eminent Fashion Artists present to you their most beautiful designs and most authoritative styles in the new Wooltex Suits and Coats.

As The Store That Sells Wooltex in this city, it is our pleasure to bring these new fashions direct to you. They are charming; they are beautiful; they are refined; they are becoming; they are correct.

Such a collection of authoritative styles in tailored suits and coats is made possible only by the concentrated efforts of artists who, as individuals, represent the best thought of the fashion centers of the world.

The best artistic skill of Paris, London, Vienna, New York and Cleveland is represented in these designs, all of which have received the approval of Madame Savarie, director of the Wooltex Fashion Bureau in Paris.

> Here are the correct style features to look for when you choose your tailored suit or coat for fall and winter.

Natural Figure

To be correctly dressed, your tailored suit must show the lines of the natural figure—not tight-fitting, but with graceful curves.

Stylish Jacket Most suit jackets are hip length, though highdy longer ones are also in style! - Fur and velvet on collar, cuns and-lower edge is especially modish. The collars are wide, to be worn close about the neck or flat, with wide revers to correspond.

WOOLTEX Tailored Suits and Coats embody all these authoritative style features. And to their stylish beauty are added the well known superiorities of Wooltex materials and Wooltex tailoring. Give yourself the pleasure of seeing these new fall

Skirts Have Plaits

Skirts are moderately full - two to two-and-one-half yards. The fullness is laid in soft rolling or closely pressed plaits.

Coats With Graceful Incurve

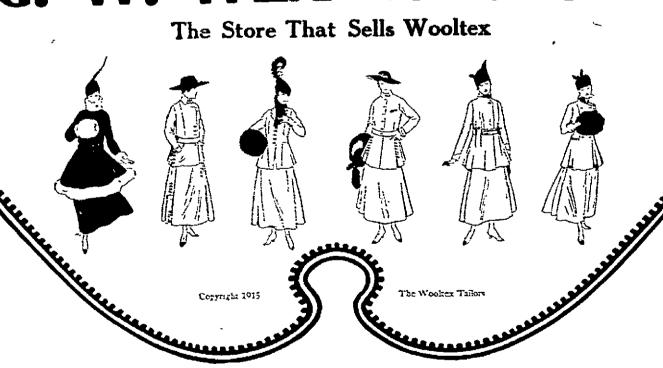

Coats have a graceful in-curve at the back, with full flaring skirts. Many handsome new models are big and loose, some being loosely belted to give the modish flaring outline styles now. Try them on, if you wish. See how becoming and graceful the new modes are. Choose your suit or coat now. Have the pleasure of being stylishly and handsomely dressed throughout the

OFFICIAL COUNT FOR BUTT.

The desperate and exhaustive efforts on the part of the managers of Mr. McPherson's campaign to win more than fifty per cent, of the votes proved an utter failure by the official count and clearly shows the decided preference of the voters for Mr. Butt. Adams county gives J. L. Butt 3186 votes, Fulton county 885. D. P. McPherson receives in Adams county 3254 and in Fulton county 767. Wm. McSherry is given in Adams county 434 votes and in Fulton county 56. These figures mean that Mr. Butt has a plurality in the district over Mr. a plurality in the district over Mr. McPherson of 50, and that Butt and McSherry have a majority over Mc-Pherson in Adams of 366 and in the district of 540.

Official Count.

County Commissioners Noah R. Beamer, S. M. Keagy and Max Eich-oftz with their clerk, George W. Baker, assisted by S. Miley Miller and J. Donald Swope, Esq. were busy from last Thursday to Wednesday morning of this week in making the official count of the primary election.
By reason of the closeness of the votes, great care was exercised in the counting, comparing and going over the tally sheets.

The official vote for judges of the Superior Court is as follows:

John Benedict Head2730 Stephen Howard Hustelton1462 George B. Orlady2277 J. Henry Williams

Teachers' Institute.

The Executive Committee of the Adams County Teachers' Association at a recent meeting completed plans, pregram, etc., for Teachers' Institute at Walters' Theatre during the week of November 15.

County Superintendent H. Milton Roth has been able to secure an excellent program of evening entertainments, which includes the American Girls, a high class company of musicians for Monday, Nov. 15; Edward Amherst Ott, "The Purposeful Orator," for Tuesday, Nov. 16: The Smith-Spring-Homes orchestral quintet for Wednesday evening and the American Quartet, which has made records for the Victor Company as the Thursday attraction. The insti-and has been found a successful one-tute will commence Monday after-Teachers will collect an average pamoon. Teachers will enroll at the County Superintendent's office in the per from the work of the pupils each day and these are to be submitted to morning and will assemble at the Prof. Roth. Judge Lindsey Brings Message to Men of Keystone State From Colorado

SAYS WOMEN VOTE RIGHT

Arizona Mayor Corroborates Helped to Reduce Municipal cause. Expenses

to neip solve its problems. This is the message Judge Ben Lindsey, Denver's children's judge and fighter for humanitarian principles, brings from Colorado, where women vote, to the men of Pennsyl-

"The liquor question and your great industrial problems in Pennsylvania press forward for solution," said Judge Lindsey in a recent in terview at Philadelphia. "Our experience in Colorado, despite all the lies the antis tell of us, shows that the solution of these problems comes sooner with equal suffrage than with out it. I predict that it will have the same result here if you give your women the vote this fall."

Another western visitor to Pennthis State to vote "Yes" on the suffrage amendment on election day is George U. Young, mayor of Phoenix

TEACHERS ENLIST IN SUFFRAGE CAMPAIGN

Have Hearty Approval of State Superintendent Schaeffer, Who Believes in "Votes for Women."

Reports from all parts of the State indicate that the school teachers of Pennsylvania will play a prominent part in the suffrage campaign between now and election. In addition to the work being done by individual teachers, their organizations are now Him; Says Women Have falling into line and giving both endorsements and financial aid to the

The Eric Teachers' Association at its last meeting voted unanimously to give fifty dollars from its treasury to the Erie Suffrage Association to Pennsylvania needs woman suf be used during the closing weeks of the campaign.

From Scranton comes word that resolutions favoring votes for women were unanimously adopted at the County Teachers' Institute and that strong support would be given to the suffrage campaign in Lackawanna by the teachers of that county. In giving their support to the suffrage campaign the teachers have the hearty approval of Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who is a firm believer in Votes for Women.

WHEN MOTHER VOTES

Then who will rock the baby? To pay the taxes, maybe!

"Ballot For Women a Right, Not a Privilege!" Says Judge Beeber

Former Judge Dimner Beeber, honorary president of the Pennsylvania Men's League for Woman Suffrage. declares that there is every reason why women should be given the vote and that he is confident they will win it this November.

"For every reason that can be given why a man should vote there is a corresponding one why women should." he said in a recent interview. "In no logical way can the right to vote be a matter of sex. If a woman pays taxes she should vote on how that money is spent.

"I think the outlook for the enfranchisement of the women of Pennsylvania on November 2 is particularly bright. The interest shown by thousands of women all over the State shows that a majority of women do want the vote. I am confident that they will win it.

"The antis" position is untenable. It is not a privilege we are extending to women but a right. If such an argument is used against women it must also be used against men."
